

Redreaming Shawsheen Proposed

Shawsheen, the "dream village" of William M. Wood 50 years ago, is back to the visionary drawing board with Wood's American Woolen Co. "ultra" administration building and land as the core for community commitment.

The selectmen this week announced plans to pursue a comprehensive development process for the Shawsheen Village area, with special reference to the Sacred Heart properties as a general step in town-wide neighborhood improvement.

The board intends to bring specific recommendations to the 1977 annual town meeting and indicated it would not recommend any specific funding for Sacred Heart property acquisition at this year's annual town meeting.

The planning process is to incorporate the thoughts of property owners and residents of the Shawsheen area, interested town boards, committees and possibly consultants.

While no funds are being recommended for any property acquisition this year, the board indicated that if it became necessary to act quickly on the possibility of acquiring any portions of the Sacred Heart property, a special town meeting could be called.

Also, funds could possibly be available under a bonding article in this year's town meeting which is to provide $500,000 for land acquisition for open space and recreation purposes. The funds, to be recommended by the selectmen, are less than the $930,000 recommended by the special subcommittee and contained in the warrant article facing the April town meeting.

Discussion of the Sacred Heart proposal followed the commentary on the reduced amount for the open space - recreation item.

Chairman Milton Greenberg of the selectmen had explained that although the board had agreed to recommend $500,000 to be bonded over a ten-year period, rather than $930,000 over 20 years, none of the properties suggested in the article were to be removed. This means that Sacred Heart remains within the properties, but hopefully not a necessary consideration at this time.

Philip Salamone, vice president of the Friends of Shawsheen Neighborhood Association, told the board that he felt the village residents were being asked to take a chance that the Sacred Heart property would not be sold within the year.

Salamone also told the board that the use of the Sacred Heart

Internal Additions May Be Cure To Overcrowding

The Andover School Committee has chosen internal additions at the high school as the next possible answer to overcrowding.

The committee agreed Tuesday night to get engineering cost studies for adding floors over part of the library and the large group room, to come up with some seven additional classrooms.

At the same time they will get the costs of excavating the unfinished basement, pouring a floor, and adding utilities there for six classrooms.

While neither the library nor large group room proposals is itself new, School Committee member Joseph Finn lumped them into one proposal Tuesday night that would yield a total of nine new classrooms and an addition to the library.

Finn suggested four classrooms over the large group room, another two in the "dead" second floor space above the entrance foyer, and three over one side of the library. At the same time, he proposed the library be expanded onto the new level, giving it the additional 1,000 square feet of space the high school administration said they needed.

Finn said some of the classrooms could be combined for science labs and/or arts and crafts room as requested.

As opposed to the basement idea, Finn said his plan keeps the classrooms centrally located. The construction would be relatively easy and "not too expensive".

The plan also does not displace the large group room, he said, leaving it for study hall use or whatever. An option already proposed included the

FinCom Views $3 Tax Hike

A tax rate increase of $3 is promised if recommendations of the Finance Committee are followed at the annual town meeting which begins Monday April 26, and continues nightly until completion.

The forecast is contained in the annual Finance Committee report in the mailing process this week to Andover taxpayers.

The recommendations include a total town budget of $19,012,201, and approval of special articles amounting to $233,831 from taxation and $80,778.03 from available funds. In addition the FinCom is recommending other expenditures which will require borrowing in the amount of $3,514,000.

Noting that the selectmen are still reviewing budgets, the FinCom states in its preface that it was faced with a potential tax rate of $61.21, a $10 hike, when it began budget deliberations in January.

Through the efforts of the committee headed by Charles Wesson, along with town administrators, the town will now have the opportunity of bringing the tax rate to $54 if FinCom recommendations are followed.

This results in the same tax rate the town had three years ago. Reductions have been possible the past two years.

The FinCom notes that the more favorable tax rate prospectus has been made possible through co-operation of town boards as well as some

Tax examiners preparing Federal income tax returns for computer processing at the IRS Service Center.

Andover 'Popular' Address Today

By plane, bus and trailer truck the bulging mail sacks are enroute from all sections of New England and upper New York state for the same destination -- Andover, Mass.

They are the federal income tax returns Forms 1040 or 1040A. Today about 450,000 will arrive at the Internal Revenue Service Center, tomorrow a like number and tomorrow night there will be more bulging mail sacks.

Before the avalanche is over IRS Service Center employees will have processed the millions received this week and others which have arrived since February with a precision and expertise it has taken years to develop.

Director M. Eddie Heironimus says the same 1.5 million returns that will be arriving this week will be processed within weeks and returns requiring refunds will be processed before May 30.

There are 3000 employees at the Service Center, many living in Andover and North Andover, who will be working day and night shifts to complete the huge task of processing the returns.

The Service Center employees will process an estimated 7.5 million individual returns this year and of that number 6 million will be for refunds estimated to have a $2.1 billion dollar value.

Processing individual income tax returns is only part of the processing task at the Service Center. Some 2 million business and other returns are also processed there.

Andover residents waiting for the last minute -- midnight tonight -- are reminded not to forget the $30 credit for personal exemptions. Thousands of taxpayers have forgotten to take the deduction.

Committee Has Costume Tips

The Bicentennial committee has organized a festive month of May for all the townspeople young and old.

There will be parades, plays, picnics, and craft shows, just to mention a few, and of course, the Ball.

"What am I going to wear to all these Bicentennial Festivities?" could be a logical question.

Women of the 18th century were very practical and not trained in the art of dressmaking. They were able to assemble costumes without patterns and used the "layered" look to produce their everyday clothes.

If you would like to join the members of the Bicentennial Commission and many town leaders in wearing 18th century costumes, the costume committee has a few helpful hints that will make your costume preparations easier:

Men: wear white shirt, turn collar under, use ruffle or lace stock, dark trousers tucked into long socks to make knee breeches. Use vest, cut away, or morning coat. Buckles on shoes. Wig optional.

Women: wear a long dress, shawl or cape, and bonnet.

Some local merchants are offering their windows for display of 18th century costume designs and suggestions. Local fabric stores will be fully equipped with fabric and pattern suggestions. A pamphlet entitled "A Pamphlet for the Purpose of Aiding the Imitators of the Noble and Gracious New England Ladies of the 18th Century" will be available at the reference desk at the library.

Any further questions may be addressed to: Mrs. Peter Trete, Mrs. Maynard Krull, Mrs. Donald Gammon, Mrs. Glen Rogers.

A Section Of Open Space Article

One of the properties being considered in Article 47 which will be presented jointly by the Conservation Commission, Planning Board and Recreational Community Schools Department at the April Town Meeting will be this tract of land bordering the Shawsheen River. This view was taken from just below the old Boston and Maine Railroad Bridge and looking north where the river proceeds downstream. The parcel is bordered on the opposite side by Red Spring Road. The selectmen Monday night indicated they would support a $500,000 bond issue for the purpose of the article. The item was inserted in the warrant at $930,000.

60 Units Set For Parade

Bicentennial Parade Chairman Sidney P. White reports that the lineup for the May 9 parade has been set, with 60 units set to participate.

The parade committee met Monday night to go over final plans and prepare to notify the various units of their formation location.

Also, White is preparing to turn over to Mrs. Doris Hudgins at the Andover Haven tickets to be issued to senior citizens and handicapped persons for seats at two locations along the parade route.

There will be 250 chairs available at the location next to the municipal parking lot on Main street and another 150 chairs in front of East Junior High school.

Memorial Day Plans Progress

Rumors have been circulating that the annual Memorial Day tribute will be cancelled this year, due to the extensive parade planning for the Bicentennial.

John Lewis, Veterans Agent, emphasized this week that such rumors should be squelched, since the Patriotic Holiday Committee is in the process of planning the Monday, May 31 tribute.

As usual and traditional, there will be a parade, main service and services at veterans lots in all Andover cemeteries by Andover Veterans organizations.

Rogers Dell Cleanup Saturday

Another cleanup session for Rogers Dell, the conservation commission land at Lupine Road and School street, is scheduled for Saturday.

Louise Van Everen, warden of the reservation, asks the assistance of all with children eight years of age and over and welcomes them to pitch in to get the area ready for Andover's Bicentennial observance.

Bring along a litter bag to finish the cleanup operation which has been underway for the past several weeks.

Graduation Day

On the recommendation of Principal Philip Wormwood, the School Committee Tuesday night set Wednesday, June 9, as graduation day for Andover High seniors. Having the program in the middle of the week, they said, would allow for two "rain

Finn Margin Increases Two

The two-vote margin of victory for School Committeeman Joseph Finn over Casimir Kolaski was increased slightly following the recount of the March 22 ballots on Saturday.

A seven-hour perusal of the punch card ballots used in the town election resulted in a loss of a vote for Kolaski and a gain of one for Finn, making the ultimate margin of victory four votes in the closest contest in Andover's history.

Finn expressed pleasure that the change had gone his way, and Kolaski commented that he would be a candidate next year.

Both candidates praised the work of Town Clerk Elden R. Salter and town election workers for their conduct of the recount process.

Salter was pleased with the outcome which proved the computer system is effective and efficient.

The recount was carried out by placing each of the computer cards in a projector and showing the card on a screen for perusal and examination by election workers and the observers working on behalf of the candidates.

Each ballot was perused and there was no reason to question any of the cards, Salter said.

"Everyone was helpful and gentlemanly about the whole thing," Salter said, returning the compliments for his department to the candidates and their workers for their decorum during what he termed a potentially very tense situation.

In all, there were about 70 people involved in the actual recount process, including workers, observers, candidates and school personnel such as custodians.

Workers were on hand about 8 a.m. and began the actual recount process at 9, finishing at 4 p.m.

The final tabulation for the school committee race was David Ahouse, 3,246; Joseph Finn, 2,049; Paul Kenny, 789; Casimir Kolaski, 2,045; David P. Leonard, 235 and Robert Najjar, 955.

The present job training program has been in effect since last July, when the State Department of Public Works selected the G.L.C.A.C., Inc. for implementation of this program for the Merrimack Valley.

A prime goal of this program is to acquaint area contractors with the availability of minority trainees through the G.L.C.A.C., Inc. office. The minimum length and type of training for each classification will be established in the training program selected by the contractor and approved by the State Highway Dept. and the Federal Highway Administration.

On the anniversary of the Town Charter date, Thursday, May 6, the event will begin at 7 o'clock with a procession from the East Junior High School parking lot to Town Hall. The program will begin there at 7:30 p.m., following musical selections by the An-

Then will come the introduction of the Indian Chief Cutshamanche, the reading of the proclamation, and exchange of property and lesser gifts, followed by a song-and-dance celebration.

The singing of "America", accompanied by the High School Band, will close the program at 8.

The line of march will include the Red Man's Band, followed by the "Tribes" of Bancroft, Doherty, Sanborn, Shawsheen, South, West, East Junior High, West Junior High, and Andover High. Then will come more students as the Town Fathers, the Andover Militia, and citizens of the tribal areas.

A community program for older people is part of a growing effort by the Greater Lawrence Mental Health Center to provide services to the elderly where they live. Recently initiated joint efforts by Hanenberg and Sue P. the Mental Health Center, Mrs. Mary Hamilton, Andover department health.

The program consists of a series of weekly sessions designed to address socialization, to meet and share feelings with other people.

For older people this is often a time when friends die, families move, transportation is not available, money is tight, issues and such common as living alone, retirement loss, failing health among the concerns raised at the weekly sessions, cooking, art, other individual interests shared, as well as information about other available resources.

The Mental Health Center is expanding its services to the elderly with a boost last fall when the Counseling Service was established by Mary C. Farr, a senior social worker with years of experience.

THE TOWNSMAN, APRIL 15, 1976

Senior Art Work

Providing services for area senior citizens are among the activities carried out by the Greater Lawrence Health Clinic. Here, Mary Corey and Mary E. Cox display some of their art work resulting from weekly meetings of such groups. Standing from left, Lena Marocco, Mary Hamilton, R.N., Valerie Buckley, Susan Bumagin, Jane Hanenberg, Mary Blundin, and Katherine Quinn.

A community outreach program for older persons which is part of a growing effort by the Greater Lawrence Mental Health Center to provide services to the elderly where they are, has recently been initiated through the joint efforts of Jane Hanenberg and Sue Bumagin of the Mental Health Center, and Mrs. Mary Hamilton of the Andover department of public health.

The program consists of a series of weekly meetings designed to address the need which exists in all of us to socialize, to meet and talk with other people occasionally, and to share feelings.

For older people the means to do this is often lacking. Old friends die, families move away, transportation is not readily available, money is tight. These issues and such common themes as living alone, retirement, personal loss, failing health, are among the concerns which are raised at the weekly sessions. In addition, cooking, art skills, and other individual interests are shared, as well as information about other available community resources.

The Mental Health Center's effort to expand and increase services to the elderly was given a boost last fall when the Senior Counseling Service was started by Mary C. Farr, M.S.W., a senior social worker with many years of experience. Services include her attendance at the Health Clinics for the elderly, making home visits to older persons with nurses or other professionals such as the clergy, being available to intervene in a crisis, providing counseling to the elderly and their families, and providing consultation to other professionals around difficult cases.

One very successful aspect of the Senior Counseling Service was a seven-session in-service training program for senior aides around mental health issues in the elderly. Mrs. Amy Olenio and Mrs. Jenny Faraci, senior aides with the Andover Council on Aging, were among the participants who received certificates upon completion of this course. An advisory committee which helped design the in-service training program and which now has become an advisory group to the Senior Counseling Service, includes in its membership Don Scott, president of the Andover Council on Aging, and Mrs. Doris Hudgins, director of The Haven.

Counseling services for all age groups, including adolescents, as well as for the mentally retarded and their families, are available at the Mental Health Center. In addition, there is an afternoon Medication Clinic, a home stimulation program for preschool children (ages 2 and 3) and their parents, and a program designed for Spanish speaking residents which includes outreach, counseling, consultation and education.

Consultation to schools, community organizations, and professionals, inservice training, and community education are among other services being delivered by the staff of the Greater Lawrence Mental Health Center. The Center is located in South Lawrence at 581 Andover St., and is open until 5 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday, Friday and until 9 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday.

Selectmen Cut Space Funds

The selectmen will recommend only $500,000 for acquisition of open-space and recreation land as proposed in a special article for town meeting consideration.

Chairman Milton Greenberg announced the decision Monday night, stating the board had considered the item calling for $930,000, and decided upon the $500,000 as being fiscally prudent at this time.

Also, the selectmen indicated that all lands considered -- Fish Brook, watershed, Sacred Heart properties, Wood Hill area and land near North Reading -- be retained in the article, permitting latitude in negotiations.

The cost of Sacred Heart land acquisition was removed from consideration, but allowed to stay in the article, should it become necessary for the town to expedite any acquisition in this area.

Sacred Heart articles were discussed at length later, with the proposal that a study be undertaken and recommendations made at 1977 town meeting. (See separate story.)

Mrs. Peggy Keck of the planning board, who served on the subcommittee which drew up the article, felt that the full $930,000 was necessary for proper implementation of the plan. Bonding the full amount over a 20 year period would reflect only 43 cents on the annual tax rate, she pointed out, and would allow the town to proceed with negotiating for all of the properties deemed necessary for acquisition.

Stanley Saba of the planning board also was opposed to the reduction and he proposed bonding over ten years, rather than 20.

Also registering opposition to the proposed reduction in total funds was Robert Henderson, speaking for the conservation commission.

The selectmen insisted, however, that the $500,000 would be their recommendation, expressing the feeling that the various boards could come back at other town meetings for additional funds if necessary, and also that possibly not all of the $930,000 would be required for property purchases.

The recommendation was based on the effect of the tax rate this year and the fiscal forecast for the next few years, the selectmen indicated.

Record Earnings At Raytheon

Raytheon Company reported record first quarter earnings of $1.18 a share, compared with $1.06 a share a year ago. Sales and net income also rose to record highs for the quarter.

In the quarter ended March 28, Raytheon had net income of $17,900,000 on net sales of $572,416,000. This compares with net income of $15,901,000 on sales of $529,949,000 a year ago.

Per-share earnings are based on the average number of shares outstanding, which for the first quarter amounted to 15,219,148 in 1976 and 15,026,885 in 1975.

Thomas L. Phillips, chairman and chief executive of the diversified electronics manufacturer, said this year's first quarter gains are attributable primarily to continued strength in the government systems business and to strong growth in Raytheon's major appliance group, particularly Amana.

Raytheon's backlog of orders stood at $2.4 billion at the end of the first quarter in 1976. It was $2.6 billion a year ago. The portion of that backlog funded by the U.S. Government amounted to $730 million this year and $616 million in 1975.

Provision for federal and foreign income taxes in the first quarter was $14,264,000 in 1976 and $12,568,000 in the prior year.

The U.S.S. Constitution now has a crew of 450, including 55 Marines. It originally had a crew of about 50 men.

Kjehl Sobak

AFS Student Champion

Kjehl Sobak of Elverum, Norway, who is spending the current school year as an American Field Service student at Phillips Academy while residing with his host family, the Fred Childs of Andover, has distinguished himself as a champion cross country skier. Kjehl has won just about every cross country ski meet he has entered this season. He won the New England Prep school meet and the Eastern Ski Association Junior meet, beating the United States Junior champion by 33 seconds.

As a Norwegian citizen, Kjehl cannot enter the national U.S. meet, only the divisional races, and as such he is rated the eastern U.S. junior cross country ski champion. Kjehl has been elected to the high school all Americans for cross country skiing.

Kjehl is also an outstanding cross country track runner and was a prime runner for Phillips Academy taking second place in 13 school Independent Schools track meet last fall.

In his homeland, Kjehl is the Norwegian junior biathlon champion.

The ski coach at Phillips Academy, George Best, calls Kjehl "the outstanding junior skier in the U.S. this year." Along with his skiing and running, Kjehl is carrying a full academic load in the science and math fields at Phillips Academy.

Outing Club Is Organizing

The Andover - North Andover YMCA Outing Club is organized for its Spring Term program under club coordinator Ted Taylor. A parents' advisory group in a preliminary meeting planned a double barreled program which divided the rapidly growing club into two sections. Boys and girls in grades 4-7 will be served in a Wanderer's Division of the Outing Club and youth in grades 6-9 will take part in a Wilderness Division program. The overlap allows for ability differences and the two divisions will provide for programs which differ considerably, the Wilderness group tackling a much more strenuous series of events.

The first trip of the term for the Wilderness Division took place last weekend when 25 traveled north for a weekend of mixed activities which included an overnight at Jackson, N.H. Some of the group climbed Mts. Clinton and Lafayette and some elected to hike to Tuckerman's Ravine and a few skied down the Sherburne Trail. Trip director Peter Oliver was assisted by ski leader Dick Chapell and hiking leader Chuck Pelz with other parents assisting.

On Saturday the Wanderer's Division enjoyed a bicycle hike to Deer Jump as a warm-up for more strenuous events to follow in the term. Martha Lucius was trip director and 12 young people made up the group.

A tentative schedule of bi-weekly events has been planned for each Club segment. The Wanderers have scheduled a climb of Mt. Major on April 24, a climb of Mt. Monadnock on May 8, an outing to Plum Island on May 22 and an overnight trip on June 12.

The Wilderness Division on May 1 will either have a bike trip of climb Mt. Monadnock; there will be a two day climb on May 15 and 16 and a three day climb in the Mahoosuc Range on May 29, 30 and 31. On June 12 and 13 the term program will wind up with a two day canoe trip.

An annual highlight of the season for the past two years has been a trip to Montreal, Canada in early July.

It began with a one-day journey to view a Montreal Expos' game, and evolved last summer into a four-day excursion which included two games against youth teams from Montreal, a visit to the Man-and-His-World exhibit (former World's Fair site), an Expos' game and other activities.

Andover swept both Canadian games last July, outslugging St. Henri 11-8 and edging an All-Star team of 16 and 17-year-old players 5-3 behind the pitching of now-graduated Mike Henderson.

Plans are underway to make a third trip to Montreal this year, hopefully to play two or three games, view an Expos' game against the World Champion Cincinnati Reds, visit Man-and-His-World, and perhaps tour the site of the upcoming 1976 Summer Olympics (July 17 - August 1).

While in Canada the team will reside at McGill University in town.

All youngsters trying out for the Babe Ruth team and not making it will be encouraged to play Senior League ball in Andover. Candidates are urged to wear spikes and bring their own baseball bats to the tryouts.

For further information, interested youngsters may contact Managers Rick Harrison or Fred Serley.

Canoe Trip Is Planned

Local members of the Appalachian Mountain Club are making preparations for a canoe trip on the Shawsheen River Saturday, May 8. The public is invited to participate. Interested persons should contact one of the leaders for further information and details. Everyone who wishes to take part must be registered with them before May 4, and will have to supply their own equipment (canoes, paddles, and personal flotation device). Children will be welcome if accompanied by parents, who will be responsible for them. Leaders are Fred Wallace and Jim Christopher of Andover.

The trip will be a leisurely afternoon's paddle on portions of the river in Andover. The marshes and woods along its course as well as adjoining town conservation lands form one of our most attractive natural preserves, especially at this time of year with the water level up and the vegetation dressed in its new coat of spring finery. A wide variety of wildlife including muskrat, waterfowl and pheasant find refuge in these wetlands. Anyone who takes the time and effort to explore it will be richly rewarded.

Andover Youth Basketball League Banquet

THE TOWNSMAN, APRIL 15, 1976

The AYBL wound up its first season last week in a flurry of activity. Capping off the week's activities was the league's Awards Banquet.

Activities began with final standings being determined in all divisions. The Lakers wrapped up the Senior crown with an outstanding 15-0 overall record, the only unblemished mark among the league's 24 teams. The Jazz captured the division's runnerup slot with a playoff victory over the Celtics. Dartmouth and Villanova finished as co-champs in the Intermediate - Major Division. In the Intermediate - Minor Division, the Panthers squeaked by the Lions to capture that crown. The Panthers finished with an overall mark of 13-2, including 13 straight victories after two early losses. The Lions finished at 12-3, their only losses being to the Panthers.

Awards Banquet

The AYBL Awards Banquet began with a fine spaghetti dinner at West Junior High School. Some 500 players, parents and friends attended the banquet. The dinner was followed by some Boston Celtics films. Wilbur Hixon, Andover High School Assistant Principal and Varsity Basketball Coach, was the featured speaker of the evening. Other speakers were last season's AHS co-captains Chuck Noel and Glen Verrette. All speakers emphasized the importance of a healthy balance between academic and athletic activities. Topping off the evening was the presentation of awards.

Ocean pout, a bottom dwelling fish found during winter in nearshore waters off New England, ranges from one to three feet and weighs one to eight pounds, Massachusetts Audubon reports. The filleted flesh is firm, white and has a good flavor. In 1972 and 1973, 35 to 45 percent of the industrial trash fish landed in southern New England was ocean pout.

49.9% OF YOU WILL LOSE MONEY TOMORROW.

Recently a newspaper questionnaire revealed that 49.9% of you don't have a NOW account.

So we figure that instead of a NOW account some of you are using a conventional checking account to pay bills. Naturally the money sitting in your checking account doesn't earn interest. And that means you're losing money.

Because the money you set aside to pay bills could be earning interest in a Bay State National Bank NOW account. A Bay State National Bank NOW account lets you write an unlimited number of free checks, and at the same time pays you the highest legal interest rate on your savings balance. So while your money is waiting to be used, it's working for you. And everyday it's adding up. These days that's more important than ever.

So open a Bay State National Bank NOW account today and make money tomorrow.

Special Symphony Program

On Friday, April 16, the Boston Symphony Bus will leave Andover at 11 a.m. instead of at the usual hour of 10 a.m. The Symphony program that day will be the complete St. Matthew Passion by Johann Sebastian Bach, and will begin at 12 noon. There will be an hour's intermission at 2:30 to allow listeners time for a light lunch, and the program will end about 5 p.m.

Because of the length of the program, the bus, which leaves from the corner of Salem and Main Streets in Andover, will go directly to Symphony Hall, arriving there in ample time for the start of the concert, and will return directly from there at the close of the program.

The concert, conducted by Music Director Seiji Ozawa, is completely sold out. Subscribers are reminded that if they cannot use their ticket, they should call Mrs. Samuel Rogers in North Andover to turn over their ticket to someone who might otherwise not be able to attend the concert.

The bus to Boston is sponsored on concert Fridays throughout the season by the Andover - North Andover Friends of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

WHAT CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CAN do for A family.

It can bring an understanding of God's closeness and care, helping each one in the family in everything he does.

It can develop a deep love for the Bible, and joyful obedience to God's law.

It can teach every member, and the family together, to heal problems in the way Jesus showed.

How can Christian Science do all this? Through Sunday School classes that strengthen children. Through Sunday services that inspire parents. Through Wednesday testimony meetings where personal accounts of healing are shared. Through Reading Rooms where truths are pondered in quiet. Won't you invite Christian Science into your family's life?

Raindrops Keep Falling On The Classrooms

By Linda S. Corbett
When it rains on Andover High School, it apparently pours inside.

That's the rather soggy picture School Committeeman Joseph Finn painted Tuesday night, and the committee subsequently directed Superintendent Kenneth R. Seifert to report back on the progress toward fixing things up.

Finn's primary concern was that the roof was guaranteed by the contractor for 20 years, and that repairs should be made at no cost to the taxpayers.

Seifert said that the administration had been working with the contractor, and that just because the roof was bonded "doesn't make it a simple matter. It can go on for years and years."

A similar situation with a roof at South School has been tied up in legalities for a year, he said.

Finn, a newcomer to the board, said he discovered the "amazing" leaky roof situation Tuesday morning while visiting the high school to look into possible remodeling for additional classrooms (see separate story).

Almost every classroom on the second floor has leaks, Finn reported, adding that two are barely usable when it rains. In one, he said, the pupils have to stand around the perimeters of the room to keep dry.

In the arts and crafts room, he said, sheets of plastic cover the equipment, apparently in case it rains at night. In other rooms, he found towels on the floors where they had been since the last rain, or towels stacked and ready for the next one.

In the gymnasium, he said, a tarpaulin hangs from the ceiling.

ing to keep water from dripping, and there are already ripples in the floor in many areas. Two strips are rising up from the rest of the floor, he said, presenting a potential hazard to basketball players.

There are no leaks in the library, he said, "but it's only a matter of time."

He said besides causing a "very poor environment", the leaks are a hazard to the students and an expense. Maintenance people are paid overtime on weekends, he said, to clean up the mess after a storm.

While Finn said he has heard comments about leaks over the past several months, he said he had no idea the situation was so severe. Other committeemen generally agreed.

Chairman George Olesen said he felt it was more than "a little administrative problem", and that the committee should have been made aware of it.

He said he recalled a request for funds for a Bancroft roof, but not for any others. Committeeman Elaine Viehmann said carpeting at Bancroft is rotting from leaks, and smells from mildew as well.

Committeeman David Ahouse asked if there were anything they could do to get the selectmen to move faster on a joint maintenanceman, and the schoolmen subsequently voted to have a joint meeting with the selectmen on the matter.

Seifert is to report back at the next school committee meeting on the status of repairs.

building (former administration building) is critical to the village, asking what use, if not public, would be made of the structure.

Selectman Richard J. Bowen and Chairman Greenberg told the group of Shawsheen residents present that the planning process has to be an open one and to be effective those involved cannot enter the procedures with foregone conclusions.

Bowen said, following the statement of the selectmen's position on Sacred Heart and Shawsheen, "implicit in this is that the board can and will work with the Sacred Heart people, the Shawsheen community, as well as the town can develop a plan amenable to the residents and the community."

"We are talking about more than just Sacred Heart properties. We are talking about a planning process for development of sections of the community which can be exciting.

"I wish something like this had been planned for Ballardvale, before they built that 'thing' along the railroad tracks."

Salamone asked if some commercial development of the Sacred Heart School building was contemplated.

He was informed that nothing is contemplated at the moment.

Greenberg said that following a study this past year, no town board or committee could express a use for the building. The town, therefore, could not acquire the property since there is no set public use.

As for the possible sale before the '77 town meeting, Bowen suggested that possibly the town could enter into an agreement with the Sacred Heart brothers that they would not sell the property, or at least let the town know of any impending sale. There is no such agreement at present.

Mrs. Susan Poore, newly elected member, told the group the board contemplates nothing horrendous, but working together to produce something nice for the village. "What we are asking is a measure of faith from you."

Bowen said "it is an expression of concern for the village of Shawsheen. It is making a commitment to Shawsheen as a whole, and not just specifically Sacred Heart."

very favorable figures from the Cherry Sheets reflecting reimbursements from the state.

FinCom members report that substantial agreement was reached in budget reductions through conferences with the school department, town manager and selectmen.

Major items approved in the warrant include $2,657,000 for water system improvements and $930,000 for acquisition of land for open space - recreation.

The latter article was the subject of discussion at the selectmen's meeting Monday night, at which time selectmen announced their intent to recommend only $500,000.

Additional review of the recommendations will be made prior to the opening session of town meeting.

The pronghorn antelope is the only surviving native American hoofed animal; it can be traced back about two million years. (Deer, moose and elk are immigrants.) Pronghorn were as numerous as buffalo, but by 1900 only about 18,000 remained north of Mexico, the Massachusetts Audubon Society says.

Easter

The most joyful event of the Christian calendar is observed with the sounds of Alleluia on Easter Sunday morning.

This most significant event marks His Great Triumph for us, as mortals subject to human frailties.

As the triumph of the Risen Christ is commemorated on Sunday, we view a world still facing great difficulty in understanding the principles of brotherhood and love -- attributes we were to understand through the lessons of Calvary.

On His long, burdensome, painful Way of the Cross up Calvary, and in the period preceding, He was blasphemed, jeered, doubted, denied by His followers.

But, in His final moments, He absolved all of their actions, convincing them that truly He was the Saviour.

Centuries later, the world still fails to adhere to the basic principles for which He sacrificed.

There is still failure and refusal to conform to the love and understanding and the principles of brotherhood, exemplified not in foreign lands, but close to home.

While we pause momentarily -- annually -- to give praise in word and song to His triumph, we still manage to stray from the important lessons He left for us to follow.

As the sounds of Easter ring out across the land on Sunday, let us reflect on His Triumph and Resurrection and His promise as the most magnificent example of a man of love and trust.

Rededication of our lives toward Him and the simple guidelines of life He left for us to follow on this Easter, will provide for us the peaceful world we so fervently desire.

Laudatory Conduct In A Tense Situation

Last Saturday provided a test of more than just Andover's modern election system.

The recount of the closest vote tally in the town's history had a built-in test of nerves between the supporters of School Committeeman Joseph Finn and those working in the interests of Casimir Kolaski who was defeated by two votes.

But to the credit of all, the retabulation took place amid some most gentlemanly conduct.

The town's system of voting, using the computer punch cards, was put to a test through the recount process, and was proven to be as accurate as possible.

There was only a couple of vote turnovers, with the ultimate result -- a four-vote margin of victory for Finn, providing ample proof that the system is efficient.

Andover's election officials have always impressed with the efficiency of manner in which they carry out the Democratic process.

Use of the computer has proven both economical and time saving since its inception in 1968.

Its use has never been challenged as far as results were concerned until the last town election.

That it proved itself against the careful perusal of some 70 combined election workers, candidates and observers, was a valuable and convincing test.

But, we were particularly impressed with the decorum of those working for the candidates.

There were no challenges, no derogatory remarks, just simple common courtesy at a time when the tenseness of the situation could induce contrary feelings.

It was, in a word, laudatory.

Now, if Mr. Finn, whose victory was made positive by the recount, can infuse some of that gentlemanly spirit into the school committee to which he was elected, the town will certainly benefit.

Through The Large End Of The Telescope

By Frederick P. Fitzgerald

This sketch will take a view of the history of town meeting in Massachusetts, a durable and venerable governing system. We'll get a glimpse only of where it came from, but we won't try to find out where it's going - not yet, at least. We'll leave that happy task for a later and perhaps easier article. We'll see, briefly, the tiny figures in Plymouth, Dorchester, Roxbury (sic), Cambridge, Watertown, and even Boston town itself as they wrestle with self-government in a new and frequently hostile environment.

We'll be careful of the way in which we use the word "democracy" for it has come to mean almost all things to all men, and the child in the cradle of liberty is not always "pure democracy" - not quite. Nevertheless the roots are there and we shall have little difficulty in establishing the clear relationship between the early governmental systems in the colonies and the coming town meeting in Andover later this month.

Prior to the arrival of the Pilgrims at Plymouth there were a number of settlements along the New England Coast, the first probably at Popham in Maine at the mouth of the Kennebec River. They were primarily fishing stations of short duration, but following the Plymouth landing more permanent communities developed. Respecting their governments it is clear they were not democratically administered as we understand the term in Andover. The charter granted to the Massachusetts Bay Colony by Charles I provided for a governor, a deputy governor, and eighteen assistants who were authorized to admit "freemen" (we shall see later what a "freeman" was) to the community (company), hold a general court (Massachusetts Great and General Court), elect officers, and make laws governing the inhabitants of the colony. It was a charter similar in many respects to the charters granted to the many trading companies of the day. The Puritans of the Massachusetts Bay Colony came with some preconceived notions of how the economic and political necessities were to be arranged in the new country. Their records are incomplete, understandably, since survival was the overriding concern, and the early entries in their journals shed little light on the way in which they governed themselves. It is reasonable to suppose that they drew heavily on their English economic and political pre-existence, it was generally a system informal in nature and used to grapple with community problems on a day to day basis. Neither the Plymouth group, nor the Massachusetts Bay Company provided for, or contemplated, a town government.

Business - town or otherwise - was conducted by a so-called "folkmoet". In England this was a general assembly of the inhabitants of a borough or a shire; in the Massachusetts Bay Colony it became a general assembly of "freemen", the primary ruling body. In this capacity the general assembly had broad powers to act on behalf of the town, or settlement. It might hire a minister, divide up the land, build a church, admit new members to the colony, or conduct any business affecting the welfare of the community. There were no town officials, elected or appointed; meetings were on an unscheduled basis; attendance was compulsory, and failure to attend was punishable by a fine. The question of the admission to the assembly deserves mention at this point. The ruling body was the assembly of freemen, but the freemen were originally members, or shareholders of the company, and they alone were allowed to vote at the general meeting.

However, the general court voted in 1631 that men could not be admitted to the body politic "unless they were members of some of the churches within the lymitts of the same"; and in 1636 the general court ordered that no member shall be admitted if he is a member of a church which was organized without the approbation of the magistrates and a majority of the existing churches. Considering the restrictions it is small wonder that "freemen" were a small portion of the adult male population in the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

It hardly needs saying that women took no part in the decision making process, and probably did not attend the general assemblies. While there may have been variations on this theme from town to town we would hardly call these early town meetings exercises in "pure democracy".

Eventually the general assembly proved inadequate ("unwieldy") for the conduct of town business, town officials began to appear, and the meetings, heretofore on an unscheduled basis, became weekly, later monthly, and finally once a year to elect town officers and to conduct town business.

Curiously, the first elected or appointed officials to appear were the constables, the general court appointing constables in Salem, Dorchester, Roxbury, and Watertown about 1630. The constable was the most important figure in the town for in 1634 we find the general court ordering him and four or more of the chief inhabitants of a town to survey the houses, the corn fields, and other lands and to enter their findings in a book to be transmitted to the general court. The constable was also charged with "warning" all freemen of an assembly, and in small towns he was also the tax collector.

As formal governmental structures emerge we see - 1633 in Dorchester - locally elected officials - selectmen - whose terms were either annual or semi-annual. They were not, however, called selectmen but "townsmen"; in Cambridge they

WEEKLY SPECIAL

Nixon Believes Laird Spied on Him

by Jack Anderson
with Joe Spear

WASHINGTON — The controversial book about Richard Nixon's last days in the White House has been sent to the former President in San Clemente. The book was written by the two Watergate reporters, Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein.

From sources who have spoken with Nixon, we can report that the former President is absolutely livid. He immediately tried to figure out who had given Woodward and Bernstein the derogatory details. Nixon told callers that he blamed his former defense secretary, Mel Laird.

Laird moved into the White House during those last days for a final fling as the President's domestic adviser. Nixon has told friends that he didn't want Laird in the White House, that he was pressured by congressional leaders to take him.

Then Laird and his congressional friends brought additional pressure upon Nixon to appoint Gerald Ford as Vice President. Nixon really wanted former Treasury Secretary John Connally. Afterward, Nixon was angry at himself for appointing Ford.

Now Nixon suspects that Laird spied on him during those last days. Laird left the White House six months before Nixon resigned but left a protege behind. The protege, William Baroody Jr., is still in the White House. Nixon believes Baroody continued to pass inside information to Laird.

Nixon is convinced that Laird furnished this information to Woodward and Bernstein. We have spoken to both Laird and Baroody. They admit they were interviewed by the authors but denied giving any derogatory information.

Several other people, who were mentioned in the book, have called Nixon at San Clemente to assure him they did not reveal the embarrassing information. Among those who telephoned Nixon were both Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Secretary of the Treasury William Simon.

Nixon's son-in-law, David Eisenhower, also confessed that he had talked privately with the authors. But young Eisenhower denied saying anything derogatory.

The angry Nixon has asked his secretary, Diane Sawyer, to prepare a detailed point-by-point rebuttal of the Woodward-Bernstein book.

Meanwhile, the previous Woodward and Bernstein bestseller, "All The President's Men," has been turned into a movie by the same title which depicts how the two young reporters helped to expose the Watergate scandal.

The movie doesn't answer the question that still has Washington buzzing: Who is "Deep Throat"? Woodward identified his best source only as "Deep Throat." He's too sharp a reporter to reveal his confidential sources, but we think we know who "Deep Throat" is.

We conducted a parallel investigation of the Watergate scandal. Although the target of the Watergate break-in, Larry O'Brien, complained that the press ignored Watergate in 1972, he added, "The major exceptions to this were the Washington Post's Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein and columnist Jack Anderson."

So we were familiar with the development of the Watergate story. We recognized the facts that Woodward and Bernstein published. We had access to the same basic facts. We knew, therefore, where the information was coming from.

Woodward and Bernstein published facts that were available only in the Washington field office of the FBI. Our own sources in the Washington field office told us at the time that they didn't trust the acting FBI chief, Pat Gray. They also didn't trust anyone in the White House. Therefore, they held back findings that we and the Woodward-Bernstein team were able to get.

So "Deep Throat" had to be a source inside the FBI's field office. We have a pretty good idea who it is, but this is as much as we're willing to reveal.

We are pointing the finger now, not to embarrass those FBI agents but to give them credit. They were under tremendous pressure from the White House to suppress the Watergate investigation. Even some of their own superiors tried to slow them down.

White House aides lied to them. The Central Intelligence Agency tried to mislead them. Yet they could not be intimidated and they could not be corrupted. The nation owes a great deal to those unsung FBI field agents.

Food for Thought: Serving the poor occasionally has its fringe benefits. A few months ago, hundreds of federal anti-poverty officials gathered at Denver's Regency Hotel for a conference on the problems of the poor. One of their former bosses, Sargent Shriver, delivered a keynote address on how the lives of the poor have improved over the past decade. As they listened, the poverty workers chewed thoughtfully on a dinner of prime steak -- which cost about $18 a plate.

Peanuts: A few months ago, Charles Schulz, who draws the Peanuts cartoon strip, broke his foot while playing tennis. Not long afterward, Snoopy also wound up with a cast on his foot. Now Schulz, his foot healed, is concentrating on his game. Peanuts readers, therefore, will soon see Snoopy heading for Wimbledon with his trusty tennis racket. But he will get no farther, traveling by freight car, than Kansas City. There, the inimitable Snoopy will discover a long lost relative named Belle.

Lengthy Leave: Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield has been on Capitol Hill for over three decades. He will retire at the end of this term, but he won't be without a job. At the University of Montana, where he used to be a professor, the faculty-student directory has carried the same entry for 32 years. It reads: "Mansfield, Michael, History Department. On leave."

Friendly Folk: Three congressmen just back from Chile -- Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, Toby Moffett, D-Conn., and George Miller, D-Calif. -- told us they were flabbergasted to hear American diplomats praise the military dictatorship. U.S. embassy officials claimed the junta, famous for its torture techniques, was run by "our kind of people." The congressmen, we have learned, will call for a shake-up of the embassy.

For Those Of 'its Who Are Older

There will be no hot lunch program at West Elementary School the week of April 19-23 because of school vacation. It will resume Monday, April 26. For those who are unaware of the program, The Haven, in conjunction with the School Food Department, sponsors a program at West Elementary School every school day through which a hot meal is served at 12:30 and costing only fifty cents. Not only is the food good, but the companionship possibilities while you eat it are really great.

The Haven has passes entitling the holder to a grandstand seat at the Bicentennial Parade Sunday, May 9. Any "older Andoverite" is invited to stop by The Haven and pick up a ticket. The parade will be Andover's best ever and well worth watching.

Every Wednesday afternoon at 3 p.m. you are invited to join the singing group at The Haven. Under the direction of one of Andover's most special citizens, Everett Collins, the group has a happy time singing all the old favorites together. They would love to have you join them.

Sunday, June 6, there will be an opportunity to attend a special event at the Cathedral of the Pines in Rindge, N.H. The program will include the Andover Male Choir, the Beverly Men's Chorus and Clan MacPherson. Buses are scheduled to leave The Haven at 11:30, stopping for dinner at the Old Forge Restaurant and then on to Rindge for the 3 p.m. program.

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN

The matter of what to do about the vacant Sacred Heart School was the prime subject of the Selectmen's meeting Monday night. I felt that the Selectmen handled the problem with wisdom and compassion for the abutters.

package. The large playing fields are ideal for town recreation. The main building itself seems to be a "bargain" in that it cannot be replaced for the asking price, even including the cost of renovations. However, there is no "bargain" if good uses cannot be put to the building. Virtually every town department has been given an opportunity to express interest in part of the building for their use. To date, however, the response has been rather negative.

Perhaps with more creative imagination applied, the building can be put to good use. It's inconceivable that with today's high cost of construction such a solid building is simply a "white elephant". The Selectmen seem to feel this way and are giving the building another look with the entire Shawshen Village area being studied as an integral complex. The input from the Shawshen Neighborhood Association will be welcomed and their well-being is being considered. I don't see how the Selectmen can be more sensitive to the needs of the Shawshen villagers while still being fiscally responsible to the town.

If in the end the building is used for commercial purposes, it's not that a good effort hasn't been made to make this a public building. Whatever the outcome, hopefully, the best interests of the Villagers and the town can be achieved. How about a post office?

were "selected townsmen", "the seven", "the nine", or simply "such as were chosen for the ordering of the affares (sic) of the plantation". An entry in the Boston records in 1642 refers to the "selectmen" and an entry in the Cambridge records mentions a meeting of the "selectmen" but speaks of the "townsmen" as issuing orders.

The number of "selectmen" or "townsmen" varied from place to place and from time to time - from three in Charlestown to twelve in Dorchester. Their duties as well as their numbers were diverse. They were charged, depending on where they functioned, with division of town lands, repairing and enlarging the meeting house, surveying the inhabitants relative to their knowledge of God, educational matters including the hiring of a schoolmaster, laying out ways (street acceptances?), regulating the sale of cider and the cutting of trees. The Dorchester records are detailed. The peculiar spelling is altered to suit contemporary needs.

... we require that our seven men be careful to meet eight times a year, every second Monday except 2:5:6:8 at some place which shall be known to all the town, and to be available from 9:00 A.M. until 3:00 P.M. so that all who have any requests or complaints to make, or any information to give, or anything whatever to do with them, may certainly find all or at least five of them.

Again from Dorchester one of "the seven" was eventually appointed moderator because of the "intemperate clashing in our towne meetings". Even though the constables and selectmen appear as the first elected or appointed officials, the fact that records are available indicates that someone was charged with the keeping of them - probably a "town clarke". He may have functioned in the same way as the vestry clerk in the parish of the established church of England.

Attendance at town meetings was compulsory, as we have noted, but also those elected to office were compelled to serve. A Dorchester town meeting minute records: "It is agreed that whosoever is chosen into any office for the good of the plantation, he shall abide by it, or submit to a fine as the company shall think meete to impose". And in Boston, in 1653, "Joseph Rock was fined twenty shillings for refusing to accept the office of a constable, being legally chosen therunto".

There are three theories respecting the origin and development of the Massachusetts town meeting: 1) Spontaneous growth arising from the needs of the company; 2) An evolution from the Anglo-Saxon tun; 3) An adaptation of familiar English customs and institutions. Both reason and evidence seem to support the third theory, namely that the settlers adapted a way of life which they followed in England in the established church and in the day to day life in the boroughs and shire. In this connection, it is interesting that following the break with church at Rome, English law charged church wardens with many civil duties, including the hiring of a schoolmaster and the administration of the laws, and that church wardens were referred to as "the four", "the twelve", or "the sixteen", names that were later given to the selectmen - or "townsmen". The church vestry meeting corresponds in some ways with the later town meeting or the "assembly of citizens" of an earlier time. We noted earlier the warning, or "warrant", given by the constable, and, not strangely, we still direct the constables to serve the warrant, or to "warn all the inhabitants of the matters to be settled at town meeting. And the "clarke" is still the town clerk. There have been changes but they have been surprisingly few. It's the same play, with the same cast of characters - only the names have been changed. A "freeman" of 1650, say, would not feel terribly strange at town meeting time in Andover, nor would he be dismayed at our sometimes "intemperate clashing", although he might question the right of citizens to leave the "general assembly" whenever they felt like doing so.

The Lobsterbacks

British soldiers in Boston in the 1770's were the visible evidence of King George III's tyranny. The typical redcoat (called "lobster-back" by colonists) wore a tight, uncomfortable greatcoat winter and summer, and in the field was burdened by 120 pounds of equipment and gear, including his musket. Poorly trained in marksmanship, his battle tactic was massed, stand-up fire by volley, followed by a bayonet charge. In contrast, the colonial minuteman's tactic was aimed, steady fire from behind walls and trees. These minutemen, in spirit and tradition, were the forerunners of today's Massachusetts National Guard.

Aristotle believed minerals, animals and plants should be exploited by man; his thought was authoritative for centuries in Europe and in Arabian countries, helping to justify the use or misuse of nature, according to Massachusetts Audubon. Theophrastus, his pupil, was the only ancient Greek to understand ecology as we do.

Excellent Trails In AVIS Taft Reservation

THE TOWNSMAN, APRIL 15, 1976

Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles about the Andover Village Improvement Society reservations in Andover. AVIS acquires woodlands, green areas, wetlands and riverbanks to preserve their trees, plants, wildlife and scenic beauty. Walking trails are maintained for public use, and all activities consistent with conservation objectives are encouraged.

By Lyn Beattie

The Amy Gordon Taft Memorial Reservation, on the east side of the By-Pass (Route 125) between Wildwood Road and Vine Street comprises about thirty acres of gently sloping woodland with streams and a small pond.

The reservation came about through the generosity of Miss Rebecca L. Taft in 1972 to honor the memory of her mother, wife of the late Rev. Arthur N. Taft. Originally, most of the reservation was owned by Dudley Bradstreet. In 1699 it was sold to Robert Gray and it remained in that family until 1933 when it was purchased by Amy and Arthur Taft.

Miss Taft is donating the land to AVIS in installments, but the entire property is currently under the management of AVIS and trails are maintained for the public. Use of the land is intended to "encourage the love of nature" and it is to be held permanently for conservation use only.

A Lesson In Nature

There is excellent walking along a woodland trail which is best started from the Vine street entrance just off Route 125. It passes through an area once an orchard and where a few apple trees still exist. Continuing through openings in three stone walls, the trail turns left to skirt a low area, and soon crosses a dike and bridge. From here, the trail forms a loop, returning to the bridge. On this loop the path passes the end of an unfinished stone wall where large rocks have been gathered but never piled in place. Birdhouses along the way give a welcome to nesting birds. Recrossing the bridge, bear right and soon the trail joins a depressed aqueduct once used to divert water for cattle. The trail soon passes along one end of a small pond, over a low rock dike. In a few steps the trail turns left, but a short sidetrip to the right along a stone wall leads to the site of a grist mill, built prior to 1739 and in operation until 1812. Pieces of the grindstone can be seen here. Before long the trail cuts through a stone wall and follows just to the left of it. Soon it ascends a slope where a large boulder protected by an impressive oak provides a pleasant spot to relax. Within a short distance one is back to the starting point.

There is a large variety of native trees here and many of them are in blossom at this time, although few of us may notice them. The poplars, aspens and the American elm are among the first in February and March followed by the red and silver maples, then birches, oaks and hickories bloom later on in May. Perhaps the coppery mist of the elms was noticed during recent weeks when in full bloom. Now the red maples are at their peak. Some trees of this species appear very red while others may have a yellowish tinge. The difference is in the color of the flowers, the yellow ones being male or pollen producing, and the red ones female or seed producing. Through a hand lens, each is a colorful sight. The lack of petals facilitates pollination by the wind.

Many wildflowers bloom here in the spring, among which the lady's slipper is perhaps the most beautiful, coming into bloom in May. Ground covers such as partridge berry and princess pine are abundant. Pheasant and quail live here and until a few years ago it was a haven for deer during the winter. Fox and raccoons have been seen here and woodchuck holes give evidence to their presence.

This reservation lends itself to cross country skiing or snowshoeing during winter months or walking during any season. Dick Hoyer is the warden and should be contacted if any special use of the area is desired.

Local Talent Gives Preview Of Follies

Follies Preview

Elie Najaar and Debbie Dyleski go through a belly dance routine during preview of Bicentennial follies to be presented by Lawrence General Hospital Aid Association May 6-8 at Central Catholic Auditorium.

The Hospital Follies is coming to town again and local talent came out in force on April 13 for "Meet the Director Night" at the North Andover Country Club. Getting into the spirit of the Lawrence General Hospital "Centennial Follies" fun were hospital personnel, nurses, doctors, city officials, even a juggling judge. Enthusiasm was high as people of all ages from all walks of life of Greater Lawrence tried their luck on Talent Night - as performers, chorus line dancers, make-up artists, costume designers, etc. - some for the first time and others as seasoned veterans.

On the first night of a three-week stay in Lawrence, Show Director Michael Pober of the Jerome H. Cargill Producing Organization of New York City was treated to a mini-show of local talent. Under the coordination of talent chairman, Mrs. Robert Kellan of the Hospital Aid Association, stage lights flickered as talent ranged from a team of professional belly dancers (Debbie Dyleski and Elie Najaar of Lawrence) to a group of Lawrence General Intensive Care Unit nurses ("The Ebberant Beats") led by June Roberts, R.N.

Singing dentist Dr. Santo Cataudella, former Follies star Ruth Keisling, and "Daley and the Donnellys" got into the spirit as did hospital maintenance men with Angelo Aufiero as their leader.

The mini-show set the pace for three weeks of intensive rehearsals which will blossom into a star-studded "Centennial Follies" on May 7 and 8 at the Christian Formation Center. Many surprises from unusual guest performers to talented neighbors and friends assure a fitting climax to the hospital's 100-year celebration.

Tickets are available at the Lawrence General Hospitality Shop and through all members of

Administrators, Teachers Awarded Tenure Status

THE TOWNSMAN, APRIL 15, 1976

The Andover School Committee Tuesday night elected three administrators and 27 teachers to tenure, and approved a host of others for the next school year via election and appointment. Principals Lois Haslam and Jack Woodward, of Doherty and South School respectively, were elected to tenure effective July 1, along with Anthony Covino, assistant principal at West Jr. High.

Effective September 1, are tenure elections of the the following:

Richard Swift, program advisor for phys ed and athletics; James Brennan, English teacher at the high school, salary $15,859; Steven Gesing, social studies at the high school, $10,791; Albert Hoffman, industrial arts at the high school, $17,936; and Ann Bonnie Swartz, art at the high school, $11,907.

Also: Kathleen Mohan, French at East Jr., $10,791; Charity Hotham, English at West Jr., $12,911; Deborah Kanner, English/Social Studies at West Jr., $10,791; Brian Staples, English at West Jr., $10,791; and English/Social Studies at West Jr., $10,791.

Robert Littlefield, Grade 6 at Doherty, $12,329; Diane MacDougall, Grade 4 at Doherty, $10,791; Patricia Seibert, Grade 3 at Doherty, $10,791; and Helen Outzen and Gene Rapisardi, both grade 6 at Sanborn, $12,044 and $10,791 respectively.

Shawsheen: Marcia DiCeglie, Grade 1, $14,662; Carolyn Peavey, Grade 3, $10,791; Terri Reisman, Grade 2, $11,207; Martha Sheets, Librarian, $15,303; and Jane Snow, Grade 5, $10,791.

Also: Douglas Buchanan and Joan Floyd, intermediate grades at South, $13,166 and $13,404 respectively, and at West Elementary, Marilyn Cronin, kindergarten, $16,519; Charlotte Lynch, Grade 6, $12,044; Francis Rapisardi, Grade 3, $13,695; Kathleen Remmes, special needs, $13,166 and Walter Rossini, Grade 5, $11,907.

Not re-elected to their positions next year because of the "reallocation of resources" policies of the school committee, were Miss Maxine Ballen, guidance teacher at Bancroft, Robert Carroll, English teacher at the high school, and John Rice, guidance at West Jr. High. According to Personnel Manager Robert Olsson, they will be placed on a "waiting list" to get back into the system when positions become available.

Olsson also explained that the teachers not re-elected have 10 days by contract to request a hearing, and the school committee has 15 days to grant one.

The whole personnel list went through Tuesday night with little ado, and Superintendent Kenneth R. Seifert indicated it was because it had all been hashed out in executive sessions.

He said was the smoothest evaluation of personnel he had had in seven years here, and that he thought the present school committee knows more about the people it is putting into its system than any other in the history of the town.

In other personnel action, the committee re-established several positions for next year, including some 766 positions that were appointed for two years, two years ago.

Appointed accordingly were Pamela Kvilekval, pupil personnel administrator; Stephen Jankauskas, core evaluation team chairman, $11,628; Robert Deacon, school psychologist, $19,347; Elizabeth Serbagi and Margaret Penkus, home assessors, $10,375 each; and Carolyn Hetley, school nurse.

A career education position was also re-established, so that a pilot program started at East Jr. High this year, could be moved into West Jr. High next year.

Exchange Club Plans For Events
